TALKING ABOUT IT IS HARD. LIVING IT IS HARDER.

KNOW THE SIGNS. KNOW WHAT TO DO.

Chad is a Sheriff's Deputy in a large city in the Midwest, with 15 years of police and investigative experience. He works in the Criminal Investigations Division and is currently assigned to a federal task force that investigates sex trafficking and child exploitation. He is a member of the Hostage Negotiation Unit. Prior to working as a Sheriff's Deputy, he worked at Boys Town (in Omaha, NE) in a residential treatment program that serves children and their families.

He holds a master's degree in criminology with a specialization in counseling from the University of Nebraska Omaha. He was Deputy of the Year in 2021 for investigations that led to the federal indictment of multiple suspects enticing minors 15 years old and younger for sexual acts. He was awarded Deputy of the Quarter in March of 2019 for investigative and undercover work in a national sex trafficking investigation resulting in multiple federal indictments and the seizure of over 3 million dollars in cash and assets. He was awarded the Medal of Honor and Deputy of the Year in 2016 for his response in a deadly force incident when a DUI suspect exited their vehicle brandishing a handgun and firing at him from point blank range. He earned the Outstanding Academic Award, Outstanding Physical Fitness Award, and Outstanding Performance Award during his time at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Academy.

Since 2015 he has traveled internationally with a non-government organization (NGO) assisting with sex trafficking investigations that have led to the rescue of trafficking victims. During his international travel, he works in an undercover role acquiring covert footage of the negotiation to purchase underage girls and boys for sex.

He is married with a son and three daughters, one who is a Staff Sgt. in the Air Force, two who work in nursing, and one who is pursuing his degree in data science. His wife worked for seven years in child welfare and is currently a long-term care coordinator for vulnerable individuals. He currently lives in rural Iowa enjoying open space and spending time with his English Mastiffs.
